

Western Media, Globalization of sexual anomaly

..... ■ Dr. Asmaa Abdel Aziz Ahmad

Writer and Researcher, Phd in Arts, Department of Media – Egypt.

Abstract

The "prominent" global events, which dealing with sexual anomaly, are increasingly being framed on global and Arab satellite news networks, a thing that was unthinkable to happen a decade ago in the media. These "missionary" tasks and the media speeches (messages) -produced by this movement, and the organizations it represents- are what constitute what may be called the "dream of internationalism" for perverts, who see it as an assimilation project to quickly catch up, especially in the Eastern countries, which are considered relatively late in this international assimilation project, especially in the Arab and Islamic worlds.

On our side, we see that this "Orientalist" motive, to direct all branches of academic research and media content about perverts' s society and rights, is one of the missionary tasks to find bases for the dream of international perverts, where there is an increasing bet on attacking the collective consciousness of specific peoples, to spread ideologies that are completely different from their culture and social and economic context, by targeting special recipients, such as children and adolescents. Therefore, it is important to interpret the Western media speech (message), to monitor the extent to which it is able to distance Arab and Islamic identity from its goals, and to show any counter-movement as something defective and contradictory to modernity.

Keywords:

globalization of sexual anomaly - Western media - Transnational culture - Internationalization of sexual anomaly- Cultural absurdity.