

Reading in a book

"Culture, Barbarianism of Europe" - Edgar Morin

■ Shehrazad Hamdi⁽¹⁾

Abstract

The focus of the research is on a reading of the book: "Culture, Barbarianism of Europe" by the philosopher Edgar Morin, through which we aim to reveal the truth about the barbaric European culture that was not faithful to its enlightenment principles, and to know the nature of complex and complex thought. We relied on the analytical and critical approach, to reach the following results: The culture of Europe is a colonial culture that wants to impose its logic and control, despite its inclusion of what was essentially humanism. From that, we conclude that it is necessary for the Arab mind to wake up from the lie: "Europe's pure humanity," and to benefit from the self-criticism practiced by "Moran", while working on self-building and developing infrastructure in anticipation of any physical, symbolic and cultural European attack.

Keywords:

European Culture - Barbarism - Humanism - Recognition - Complex Thought.

1 - PhD researcher at Mohamed Lamine Debaghine University, Setif 2, Algeria